RESPONDING TO YOUNG PEOPLE WHO SELF HARM

R Morris* Correspondence: Tees Esk and Wear N.H.S., The Ridings 13 Milbank Terrace Redcar TS101EE, UK

10.1136/ip.2010.029215.63

Deliberate Self Harm in Children and Young People may promote anxiety in families and professionals. My presentation describes how the confidence and competence of a Team can reduce such anxiety and improve outcome for those Young People who choose self-harming behaviour as a way of coping with life stressors. I will share information about:

- local prevalence rates of Young People who attend Accident and Emergency Department
- how to develop a focussed team response
- assessing and managing risk-an Aide Memoir for practitioners
- the strength of robust Clinical Supervision and Audit